New Years Day Reflections

Jack Hubbard

Officer Steve Baxter, Assistant Port Commissioner (above), recently spoke at the Propellor Club Luncheon on November 7th. Q&A after his presentation featured some discussion about the CBP mission at the southern border and the challenges they have faced this year.

We wish to extend our thanks to the men and women of CBP who provided humanitarian aid to the many thousands that flooded our southern border this year. Many CBP officers provided toiletries, clothing and other articles that they purchased out of their own pockets. These charitable actions by CBP officers--in tandem with their mission to secure our border--truly put forth "one face at the border" that reflects the compassion and generosity of our great nation. For that we are truly grateful.

Happy New Year to all!
